BRITISH CONSULATE
28th Dec. Tientsin 7th Oct. 1863.

CONSULAR REGULATIONS.

FOR THE PORT OF TIENTSIN.

1st.—The British Port of Tientsin shall lie between the North face and the South face of the settlement at Tien-chu-Sin: the British Port of Taku shall lie between the First Bending in the River and the South Port, (the inner anchorage), and between the Bar at the mouth of the River, and Three miles to seaward (the outer anchorage).

2nd.—Every master of a vessel shall deposit his Ship's papers, together with a summary of the Manifest of her cargo, at the Vice-Consulate at Taku, within forty-eight hours, if in the inner anchorage, and within fifty-six if in the outer, unless a Sunday or holiday should intervene. Masters not conforming to this Regulation will render themselves liable to a penalty of Two Hundred Dollars.

3rd.—Every British vessel must show her colors on entering the Port or anchorage, and keep them hoisted until she shall have been reported at the Vice-Consulate, and her papers deposited there. Masters not conforming to this Regulation will render themselves liable to a penalty not exceeding one Hundred Dollars for each offence.

4th.—Should any vessel, the property of a British subject, but not provided with a Certificate of Registry, hoist the British ensign within the anchorage, or should she exhibit within such limits any flag so similar to the British Ensign as not to be distinguishable from it, the master of such vessel will be liable for every such offence to a penalty not exceeding one Hundred Dollars.

5th.—Masters of vessels will be held accountable for the conduct of their crews on shore. Should any seaman absent himself without permission, the Master shall forthwith report the same at the Consulate at Tientsin, or Vice-Consulate at Taku, and take efficient measures for the recovery of the absconder.

6th.—The discharge of guns and other firearms from vessels in harbor is strictly prohibited under a penalty not exceeding fifty dollars.

7th.—Masters of vessels when reporting their arrival at the Port or Anchorage, shall notify in writing the names of all passengers and persons not forming part of the registered crew on board, and due notice must likewise be given of the numbers and names of persons not forming part of the registered crew, intending to leave the port on board of any vessel.

8th.—All cases of death occurring on board of vessels in harbor, or in the residences of British subjects on shore, must be immediately reported, and in the event of sudden or accidental death, the best information obtainable will likewise be required. It is strictly prohibited to throw overboard the bodies of seamen or other persons dying on board of a vessel in harbor.

9th.—Stones, Ballast or Cinders shall not be thrown overboard in the harbor of Tientsin.

10th.—In mooring vessels at Tientsin near the bund, Masters will fasten their hawsers to the painted beams set apart for their use. By fixing hawsers to "trees," or in such a way as to impede the public path, Masters will lay themselves open to a penalty of fifty dollars for every such offence.

11th.—All cases of loss of property by theft or fraud on board ship, as well as of assault or felony requiring redress, or involving the public peace, must be immediately reported. Any Chinese subject guilty of a misdemeanor on shore or afloat may be detained on detection, but information in such cases must be given forthwith at the Consulate or Vice-Consulate Office, and in no instance shall British subjects be permitted to use violence towards Chinese offenders, or take the law into their own hands.

12th.—Any vessel laden with Gunpowder or any combustible, is prohibited from entering the anchorage or remaining within a distance of one mile therefrom.

13th.—No seaman or other person belonging to a British ship may be discharged or left behind at this Port without the express sanction of the Consul or Vice-Consul, nor until sufficient security shall have been given for his maintenance and good behavior while remaining on shore. If any British subject left at this Port by a British vessel be found acquiring public relief prior to the departure of such vessel from the dominions of the Emperor of China, the vessel will be held responsible for the maintenance and removal of such British Subject.

14th.—Masters are required to conform to the "Custom House Regulations" published by Consul Mongon on the 25th of May 1861.

15th.—When a vessel is ready to leave this Port, the master shall give notice to the Consul or Vice-Consul, and shall hoist a Blue Peter at least 24 hours before the time appointed for her departure.

16th.—No British Subject may establish either a Boarding or Baiting House at this Port without the sanction of the Consul or Vice-Consul. Every licensed boarding or baiting house keeper will be held accountable for the good conduct of all inmates and followers of his house.

17th.—Every British subject residing at this Port, who shall not have been already enrolled in the Consular register, shall apply to the Consul or to the Vice-Consul to be enrolled within 10 days after the promulgation of these regulations. No British subject will be entitled to claim the protection of the authorities who shall not so have enrolled himself, and who cannot allege valid reasons for having done so.

18th.—The term "Consul" or "Vice-Consul" shall be construed to include every officer of Her Majesty's Consular Service, holding the Queen's commission as Consul or Vice-Consul, or acting as such.

19th.—All fines and penalties imposed under the above regulations shall be levied and enforced in the manner specified in Article 33rd of the Order of Her Majesty in Council, dated the 13th June, 1853, and all penalties shall be appropriated and applied as provided for in Article 33rd of the same order.

The North-China Herald.

IMPARTIAL, NOT NEUTRAL.

SHANGHAI, SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 21 1863.

OUR contemporary, the Hongkong Daily Press has in its issue of the 10th inst. fallen into a strange mistake. A long extract, under the heading of "A Voice from Hongkong," is given as from the columns of the North-China Herald. It is true that in another portion of the same paper, he ascribes the "Voice" to the Friend of China. "Honor to whom honor is due." We shall thank our southern contemporary to notice the error.

BURGUVINE's career in China seems likely to have an unsatisfactory ending. He has been a fruitful source of contention and ill feeling between the American Authorities and the local Native Government. At length the dispute appears to be upon the eve of settlement, by his deportation from Shanghai. We are not disposed to blame the Putai and his colleagues in office for insisting on Burguine's departure from the country. He has done nothing to render himself in the highest degree obnoxious to them. His conduct at no time bore the impress of that cringing nature which the narrow-minded Chinese Official delighted to honor. When in command at Sung-kong, his course of action was always honest and "above board," rather tending to bear the mandarins than to follow out their wishes blindly. The peculiarity was clearly but most injudiciously exemplified in his conduct to Taku. From the time that Burguine first practically announced his intention of non-recognition to the peculiar ideas of the Chinese officials, every effort was made to diminish his power, and lessen his influence with his soldiery. Inflammatory placards were posted up in Sung-kong, and no means left untried to lower his popularity with both natives and foreigners, and thus compass his ruin. We must also notice another most powerful incentive towards getting rid of Burguine. For the Nanking expedition, a large amount of stores was requisited, the payment for which in hard cash before delivery, was insisted upon in Hongkong. Burguine advanced a large amount of money, a debt which, in view of the intervening circumstances, the Government now repudiates. It is absurd to say that any subsequent act on Burguine's part when he was no longer connected with the Imperial force, could vitiate his term of office. We must therefore claim the same justice for him that we claim for the Chinese government in claiming for themselves. We must insist on the pecuniary debts due by the latter to Burguine being religiously paid, and we shall not then object to any exercise of power or influence which will exact from Burguine the penalty of the moral and political debt which the Chinese government claims from him. Each side has a wrong for which to obtain redress, and a right to enforce. If, therefore, the Consular authorities compel Burguine's compliance with a demand (the justice of which we do not deny) they are, we believe, equally bound to compel the recognition of those rights to which every man, whether in public or private life, may lay claim. Burguine now lies in prison on a charge of committing a crime against the Government of the country in which he as a foreigner was living. The eye of the law does not recognize any difference between a rightful and a usurping government. It claims for the government actually in power the support and countenance of all those who live in the country over which, rightly or wrongly, that government exercises its sway. It matters not therefore whether Burguine himself and the Consular authorities be or be not persuaded of the divine right of the Tartars. Burguine has been guilty of a state offence, and for that it is only just that he should suffer. On the other hand it is asserted that, through some inadvertence, he was not informed of the deportation clause in the pardon extended to those who voluntarily left Suchow. The document transmitted to Major Gordon by Messrs. Markham and Seward, contained a special proviso to the effect that the Consuls reserved the right of deporting any subjects of England or America who should come over from the Suchow garrison. We are not, however, aware of any direct promise made to the Chinese that Burguine should be forced to quit the country. However this may be, and whatever difficulties might be raised on the score of the condition not having been explained to him, we have no intention of asserting that the Chinese, through the Consuls, are acting with unwarrantable harshness in insisting on excluding Burguine from China. They claim justice on an offender, but that offender has at the same time a right to claim justice from them. Some difficulty will, we understand, be found in deporting Burguine from China should he wish to remain in the country. If we are informed rightly, the power of the American Consul in this matter is purely local, and he can consequently only order the deportation of a criminal from Shanghai. In that case, without a warrant from the minister, Burguine could take up his residence at any other port in China, and even did the minister issue a warrant of deportation, it would not, we presume, take effect in Hongkong. Were Burguine to remove to Hongkong, he would be deported from China, and thus his sentence, as far as insisted on by the local authorities here, would be fully carried out. But it is self-evident that in Hongkong itself he could, were he so disposed, be a continual thorn in the side of the Imperial Government. It would seem, therefore, to be a preferable course for the native Government to adopt, to pay off Burguine's claims, and permit him to leave the country with such a competence as would place him in a position in which he could no longer plead injustice and disappointed hopes as an excuse for hostility.

THE passengers who came to China in the Marque of Argyle will not look back with much satisfaction on their journey, nor will Captain Bellwood forget his first voyage as master. Three actions have already arisen out of circumstances which occurred during the passage, and a fourth is still possible, if Mrs. Friedelburg should feel called on to emulate the public spirit of Miss Davis, and bring an action for the recovery of the whole of her passage money, because she was obliged to live on salt provisions for a few weeks and received a curtailed allowance of wine and spirits. Perhaps, however, as we do not hear of this lady having fainted from want of the "common necessities of life," as Miss Davis was in the habit of doing, Captain Bellwood may be spared a fourth appearance in the witness box and escape the payment of another $160. Although theoretically responsible for the provisions issued to his passengers, he was not the really guilty party in this instance. The owners of the vessel assured him that no such supplies had been put on board, and he naturally accepted their statement. Unfortunately it proved incorrect, and when Miss Davis undertook, as a public duty, to punish them by exposure in the Consular Court, Captain Bellwood, as their representative, had to bear the odium. We are glad to learn that Miss Davis intends to devote the $150 awarded her to purposes of public charity, after deducting from it lawyer's fees and other trifling expenses incidental to her recovery. Captain Bellwood has also been mulcted in $200 for slaking his first at this lady; making a total of $400,—some £10 more than she paid for her passage,—which he has had to disgorge since his arrival in Shanghai.

These, however, were ordinary cases; but it is seldom an action of the nature of BELLWOOD versus ANDREWS comes before a Consul. Somehow, such cases do not often crop out in foreign ports; but are generally reserved for the more legitimate precincts of the Divorce Court. The plaintiff has preferred in the present instance that the matter should be made public in Shanghai, through the medium of a notice for damages, and be pursued further, before Baron Wile, on the basis of the evidence taken during the trial. Publicity, either here or in England, was unavoidable. It was a matter of choice whether it should take place in the Consular Court at Shanghai or in the Divorce Court at London. We do not design to recapitulate the evidence, which was of the usual Divorce Court class, though perhaps slightly exaggerated in its tenor; and only allude to it for the purpose of making a few remarks regarding the witnesses. From the evidence of the ladies, for instance, it would appear that the steward was an injured individual, and that the placing him in irons was an act of gratuitous cruelty. But from details he gave, it is evident that Captain Bellwood must have been subjected to constant espionage; that his every movement was watched, and his footsteps dogged, in a manner that would have enraged a man of much more placid temper than he is represented to be. However blameable Captain Bellwood's conduct may have been, it was certainly not the province of the steward to interfere, and so far from meriting the charge of cruelty which has been imputed by the lady passengers Captain Bellwood, by putting him in irons, punished him infinitely less severely than he deserved. The punishment may have been disproportioned to the alleged offence of watching him, but had been really earned by a continued system of spying on every possible occasion and on any or no pretext. It is not surprising that he expressed a desire not to go home in the Marque of Argyle. We must of course accept without question Mr. Cooper's assurance, that it was exceedingly painful to Mrs. Friedelburg to give the evidence she did; and this being so, it is greatly to be regretted that she should have been called at all. From a statement of the course of her evidence, it is clear that Mr. Allan, the second officer of the vessel, could have given at least as strong testimony as herself on one point, and this would have been sufficient for all legal purposes, without the multiplicity of details which were elicited from Mrs. Friedelburg. It must have been sufficiently painful for that lady to witness the several occurrences, without being called on to recapitulate them in an open Court. As Mr. Lawrence saw his able speech for the defence, feeling of kindness are apt to be developed when one woman tarnishes the reputation of another, even under the compulsion of a summons—and, of course, against her inclination. It must have been especially painful to Mrs. Friedelburg, for instance, to recall the conduct she had felt herself constrained to adopt towards Mrs. Andrews after she discovered that the latter had fallen from her high estate. It may have been necessary, to preserve her own reputation unscathed, that she should avoid walking on the same side of the deck with that lady, and refuse to allow her to ascend to the poop in her company, to receive her friends. But such conduct is liable to the interpretation of unkindness which the counsel for the defence put upon it, and its recapitulation in Court might leave a doubt in the minds of those present whether the same kindness really were shown towards that unfortunate lady with which women might naturally be supposed to treat each other. Captain Bellwood's plea of guilty at an early stage of the proceedings prevented any evidence on this point being tendered by impartial witnesses; so Mrs. Friedelburg's own statement that such kindness was shown remains unsupported—and, uncontradicted. It is impossible therefore to judge how far the absence of sympathy on the part of those from whom it might naturally be expected, may have been influential in driving her away from the ship, and thus have paved the way to the unhappy consequences. Captain Bellwood's own conduct was of course inexhaustible, the utmost his advocate could attempt was to palliate it. It is the duty of a master to maintain order and propriety in his ship; when he is the first to break them, he becomes unfit for the responsibility of his situation. The office of the individual is aggravated in the person of the officer. The temptations may have been great, but can only be held to palliate not excuse the crime.
